

The options of the sulfur reduction for gasoline

Dan MANDALOPOL*, Irina NITA and Corina TEODORESCU

*Department of Technology and Chemical Engineering, "Ovidius" University, 124 Mamaia Blvd, 900527
Constanta, Romania*

Abstract Refinery today are scrambling to meet not only the low sulfur requirements, but also the imminent ultra-low sulfur mandates. A lot of money will be invested in the next years to attain these sulfur levels. The big problems will be what to buy, how much to spend, what will be the payout and if the actually technologies will be available for this purpose. In the work there are presented some options in this respect.

Keywords: sulfur content, gasoline, technology
